Elevating Our Client Services Through Inter-Professional Collaborations

Join us for this day of inter-professional collaborations brought to you by the California Association of Education for Young Children, Infant Development Association, and Occupational Therapy Association of California.

The members of these three professional associations provide services that are significantly important in the health, education, and well-being of the youngest citizens of the state of California. There is no more critical time than now for us to learn together, share knowledge, and identify more effective ways to collaborate for the benefit of our young clients and their families. Lunch is included in the fee for this session.

Topic Descriptions

9:00am-9:15am – Welcome

9:15am-10:45am - Fostering Imaginative Play to Support Development

Winifred Schultz-Krohn, PhD, OTR/L, BCP, FAOTA; Courtney Boitano, OTD, OTR/L, BCBA-D

Play is an important part of child development and imaginative play promotes creativity and problem-solving skills. This session will focus on the benefits of imaginative play and how this can be fostered

Learning Objectives. At the end of the presentation, participants will be able to:

- Identify the role of imaginative play in child development.
- Incorporate imaginative play into the everyday routines of the family.
- Identify how “found” objectives within the home setting can be used to promote imaginative play.

10:45am-11:00am – Break

11am-12:30pm – Supporting Parents Who Are Supporting a Toddler's Behavior

Wendy Morrison, RN, ECSE

Those of us who work with young children know stress, like the stress we are all feeling as a result of this pandemic, often translates into an uptick in challenging behaviors. Tantrums, meltdowns, sleep disruptions, and regression are all ways that children may show that they are having a hard time. So, what can we do to support the parents and caregivers that we work with? During this presentation key concepts of positive behavioral interventions and support that have been proven to support the acquisition of a child's desired social and communication development will be covered. We will also consider some specific strategies that can help to maintain a little more peace during this challenging time.

Learning Objectives. At the end of this presentation, participants will be able to:

- Recognize all behaviors as communication.
- Describe the ABC's of behavior and create a competing behavior pathway to create a plan to encourage more positive behaviors.
- Site a few strategies for helping young children (and their caregivers) manage stress.

12:30pm-1:30pm – Lunch provided (in the same room)

1:30pm-2:30pm – Fun with Food! Development of Family-Centered Mealtime Routines

*Winifred Schultz-Krohn, PhD, OTR/L, BCP, FAOTA;
Jerilyn 'Gigi' Smith, PhD, OTR/L, FAOTA*

Family mealtime often includes sharing and bonding among family members. These routines may be disrupted when children have feeding difficulties. This session will focus on how to develop positive mealtime routines to support the entire family.

Learning Objectives. At the end of this presentation, participants will be able to:

- Understand the importance of healthy mealtime routines for child development.
- Differentiate typical fluctuations in mealtime behaviors compared to food refusals due to other reasons.
- Identify techniques to foster expanding the variety of foods accepted by the toddler/young child within the family routines.

2:30pm-4:00pm – Interactions and Experiences During Routines Support Early Brain Development, Skill Mastery, and Future Learning

Presenter To Be Announced

Lifelong learning skills and dispositions are established during the early years of a child's development. This session will share information on critical elements of brain development during the first three years and the connections between early brain growth and development and creating foundations for continued brain growth and development, mastering cognitive skills as well as social-emotional skills and all domains of development. There will be a focus on the influence of positive and consistent interactions and quality, rich experiences during daily routines and family rituals.

Learning Objectives. At the end of the session, participants will be able to:

- Understand processes of early brain development, including synaptogenesis, pruning, and development in different regions of the brain.
- Explain the importance of quality positive interactions and experiences on brain growth and development.
- Recognize the value of repeated experiences in brain growth and development and future development and learning potential.
- Describe daily routine and family ritual opportunities to create rich experiences to support healthy brain growth and development.

4:00pm-4:15pm – Break

4:15pm-5:30pm – Discussion: Elevating our Inter-Professional Collaborations

A discussion led by a panel of the three sponsoring organizations (CAAEYC, IDA, and OTAC).

Optional/Complimentary

6:00pm-7:30pm – Movie Night: Lead Me Home

About Our Presenters

Courtney Boitano OTD, OTR/L, BCBA-D, has worked with children and families for over 14 years and has focused on supporting parent-child relationships. She is a lecturer at San Jose State University teaching a variety of courses including the faculty-run clinic that supports graduate occupational therapy students in developing clinical reasoning skills and professional behaviors. She is the fieldwork level II supervisor at the Summer of 2022 Family Supportive Housing.

Wendy Morrison, RN, ECSE, has worked in the field of early intervention for almost three decades after a number of years working as a pediatric nurse. She is an early childhood special educator and inclusion consultant working in homes and early care and learning settings around the San Francisco bay area. For over a decade, Morrison has provided training to early intervention, early childhood, and medical professionals on many topics relevant to the field of early intervention. In addition, she is a faculty member in the Sacramento State University's ECSE teacher preparation program. Morrison is particularly interested in national and state policy that impacts the field of early intervention. She holds an MA in ECSE and a BS in nursing science. In addition, Morrison received an authorization in the use of AAC in early intervention settings. As well as serving on the board of the Infant Development Association of California, she is also an active member of CalAIMH and a member of both Zero to Three and CAAEYC.

Winifred Schultz-Krohn, PhD, OTR/L, BCP, FAOTA, has over 40 years of experience as an occupational therapy practitioner. She is Board Certified in Pediatrics (BCP) by the American Occupational Therapy Association (AOTA) and has advanced practice in swallowing (SWC) by the California Board of Occupational Therapy. She served as the chair of various AOTA committees and is a professor of occupational therapy at San Jose State University. Her recognitions include: a regional Jefferson Award for her volunteer service to homeless families, selection as the Honored Lecturer for the California Occupational Therapy Foundation (CFOT) in 2012, prestigious Outstanding Professor of San Jose State University for 2013-2014, and the CFOT Humanitarian Award for her pro bono work with homeless families in 2017. Schultz-Krohn is the co-editor of the 6th, 7th, 8th and upcoming 9th Edition of Pedretti's Occupational Therapy: Practice Skills for Physical Dysfunction textbook in addition to authoring well over 30 articles and chapters. Schultz-Krohn serves on several the editorial boards and is the chair of the OTAC 2022 Annual Conference & Innovation Expo; she also chaired the OTAC 2021 Conference.

Jerilyn (Gigi) Smith, PhD, OTR/L, FAOTA, has been an occupational therapy practitioner for 40 years. She received a bachelor's degree and post-professional master's degree in occupational therapy from San Jose State University, and earned a PhD in health sciences from Touro University International. Smith is an associate professor and chair of the Occupational Therapy Department at San Jose State University where she also acts as a faculty advisor for student research projects. She is also the graduate admissions coordinator and advisor for the Occupational Therapy Program. Smith sits on multiple committees at the university, college, and departmental levels. Smith has written several chapters in well-respected occupational therapy textbooks. She has lectured locally, nationally, and internationally on various topics, but most extensively on occupational therapy's role in dysphagia intervention. She has been an active member of both AOTA and OTAC since the time she was a student, serving on many different committees and in various leadership roles. She is currently the OTAC Board of Directors' vice president. Clinical experience includes working with adults with neurological disorders in a variety of practice settings and with children 0-3 years old in early intervention home care.
